FINANCIAL DEPRESSION AND THE FEDERATION DRIVE

Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath

Although the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, in inaugurating its annual campaign with a banquet at the King Edward Hotel this Sunday evening, is seeking twenty-five thousand dollars in excess of the sum sought last year, advance indications have not been too favorable to assure us that this goal will be reached. The dark cloud of pessimism which is sweeping the world today enshrouds all our activities, and even our charity campaigns seem not immune from this contemporary virus of despair. There are not a few erstwhile generous contributors who have intimated that their donations will have to be reduced rather than increased. And with some the change will be justified, we are sure; but we are equally certain that there will be others whose plea of "hard times" will be but a pathetic subterfuge, a painful alibi eagerly exploited to escape their rightful obligations.

We do not want to place ourselves in the category of those Jews who can concur only when they agree what another shall give to charity; we do not pretend to know the financial condition of any other individual, and yet we maintain that "by their fruits shall ye know them;" by their standards of living and expenditures for luxuries and sports and superfluous fancies shall we judge who is and who is not able to give of their bounty to the poor. We shall quietly observe our fellows and we shall take particular note as to where this raucous cry of "retrenchment" takes its first effect. We shall watch as to whether there is even a semblance of self-denial—a few less elaborate parties, a dress or two foregone, a diminution of gambling and of attendance at sporting events, fewer pleasure jaunts and selfish indulgences—ere there is a tightening up on contributions to the needy and bereft.

Yes, this year's Federation Drive is going to demonstrate to us most clearly and unmistakably just who in our midst is worthy of the name of philanthropist. Many may have cast their monies to the poor in the past and thus have earned for themselves the reputation of men of charity when in reality they gave but of their surplus profits for ostentation and display or as a sop to conscience, but now will come the true trial and test. Such giving is not charity at all and those who will fail us in this hour of need will not merit so noble a name. Charity is not the mere act of letting a few spare crumbs fall from the banquet table; charity is the actual sharing even of one's last crust of bread with a starving brother. How many of us, judged by such a standard, can claim the name of philanthropist? If we have been unhappily victimized by untoward business conditions, if our paper profits have been wiped out, nay, even if some of our very real earnings have been swept ruthlessly aside, then we have at last the sublime opportunity of proving our charitable spirit: by giving now not merely of our dividends and income, but of our capital and savings as well, by dividing even the meagre amount we may still possess with those who have even less.

No one can designate for us what that amount shall be. Conscience and searching honesty alone can dictate so delicate and subtle a thing. But

THE SIMPSON REPORT

The long awaited Simpson report on Palestine and the British government's statement of policy have just been made public. They are devastating. They blast the props from under the Zionist structure. They are a brutal revocation of sacred pledges made by a succession of British statesmen and governments to the Jewish people. The Balfour Declaration has been turned into a worthless scrap of paper. Ramsay MacDonald and Lord Passfield will stand out in Jewish history as sinister figures who have betrayed the trust of the Jewish nation. Dr. Weizmann has resigned as president of the Zionist organization and the Jewish Agency. The Labor government has turned its back on him. He can no longer negotiate with it. The situation is diabolical.

We shall recur to the subject at greater length in next week's issue.

THE AMERICAN JEWISH CONGRESS

At this writing the American Jewish Congress is in session at Washington. No reports of the proceedings or resolutions are as yet available. It is to be expected, however, that it will register a high average of interesting deliberations. It has in its favor many conditions which will help to set it off as an outstanding event. One thing which the Congress has always needed to make its existence noticeable was a background of Jewish troubles in as many lands as possible. And somehow Providence always saw to it that this requisite was satisfied. If it wasn't Poland, it was Rumania, or Soviet Russia that furnished the Congress provocation for thundering speeches and statesmanlike resolutions. At the last session its mill was kept in grist by the Republic itself. The Massina incident was excellent stuff for Jewish Congresses. This year the situation of the Jewish people is so bad, and so universally bad, that there is material enough for a dozen Congresses; for a congress in every country; indeed for a world Jewish congress. The American Jewish Congress will thus be able to roll in luxury. It will be in a position to pick and choose. In addition to the old standbys—Russia, Poland, and Rumania—it will have at its disposal the menace of the Hitlerites in Germany, the clouds in Czecho-Slovakia and the gangrenous condition of Zionism, not to speak of the perennial domestic anxieties. In normal times the developments in Germany alone would have sufficed to tax the oratorical powers of the entire congress. Eastern European difficulties have become more or less banal. The strings of sympathy with these have been played on so much and so often that the ear refuses to be shocked by their whining notes. Germany offers a new story and a new song. American Jews, especially of the congress variety, are accustomed to looking up to German Jews. Somehow they think of them in terms of the Marshalls and the Schiffs and the Warburgs. One gets a sort of sadistic thrill in acting as protector of a person who but a short while before was prouder and more powerful than oneself. The congress might have felt itself suffused with a welling sense of self esteem as it could contemplate the increased importance of its objects of concern. However glorying in the wealth of its material, it may have to affect an air of casualness about its new treasure and bestow its paternal solicitude on all its subjects alike.

THEATRE GUILD STAGE CANDIDA

Students May Obtain Tickets at special prices. Strong Cast Acts. Aim is to provide opening for Canadian Writers and Actors.

The Theatre Guild reopens for the new season on October 29th. Its first production for the year will be the presentation in Moyse Hall of George Bernard Shaw's "Candida". Candida, the play chosen offers great scope for the cast, which in turn seems to be admirably suited. R. M. STEWART takes the part of the Rev. James Mavor Morell, Martha Allen that of his wife, Candida. Helen Trenholme that of his secretary, Proserpine Garnett, Cedric Hands plays the part of the Rev. Alexander Mill. Edwin Waite that of Mr. Burgess, Candida's father, and Desmond Beresford the part of Eugene Marchbanks, a poet.

The Theatre Guild seeks the support and co-operation of all amateur bodies within its range. It is in no way intended to supplant them, or to interfere with their activities. On the contrary, the institution of the Theatre Guild cannot fail to help such amateur groups in obtaining a higher level of interpretation, and to make available opportunities for the study and practice of the drama and its best methods and standards.

Through the courtesy and co-operation of McGill University, the Guild has secured the use of Moyse Hall for certain dates in the months of March and April for the production of these plays. This does not mean that the Guild may expect the continued use of Moyse Hall, as the number of McGill activities preclude this, so that a permanent home for the Theatre Guild is a matter for the future. Further information respecting these plays will be given in advance of their dates.

In the first instance the object of the Theatre Guild is to ascertain to what degree the interest of the public can be depended upon, and to investigate the possibilities of securing plays suitable for production primarily from Canadian sources. The Guild will not overlook that there should be reciprocity in brains; but Canadian literary talent should be encouraged when it is of the standard demanded by people of taste and intelligence. Given these requisites, the Guild must demonstrate its ability to produce plays and to find a medium which these productions can be placed before the Guild's clientele.

THE TOWEL

Most people realize that because our hands come into contact with so many objects, they become soiled and contaminated with bacteria or germs. Many of the germs which our hands pick up are harmless, but some of them belong to the disease producing group.

If the disease germs present on our hands are to cause trouble, they must gain entrance into the body. Food or drink may be contaminated by the hands, and so the germs are taken into the mouth along with food or drink. Hands may be carried to the face, and the soiled fingers touch the lips or nose. In this way, disease germs are transferred to the interior of the body.

It is for these reasons we teach that the hands should be kept away from the face and that they should always be thoroughly washed before food is touched. There is no doubt that clean hands afford one of the most practical safeguards against disease which we possess.

When the hands are thoroughly washed, we get rid of the gross dirt and a large percentage of the germs lying on the skin. The hands are not sterilized by washing. By that we mean that all germs on the skin are not destroyed as they are when, for example, we boil objects in water.

Practically, this means that when the hands are wiped on the towel, some living germs are left on the towel. If the towel is frequently used, or if it is kept in use for some days, the number of living germs on the towel increases.

If the same towel is used by more than one person, then each user not only leaves some of the germs off his his hands on the towel, but also, as he uses the towel, he picks up on his hands some of the germs which other users of the towel have left on it.

It has been proved that this is what actually happens. Our reason for bringing it to the attention of our readers is that it has a practical meaning for each one in his daily life.

It is obvious that the common towel, whether in the home or elsewhere, may be responsible for the spread of disease germs. This means that we should have our own towel and never use one belonging to another person. Above all, we should shun the public towel just as we avoid the common drinking cup.

Ideally, a towel should be used but once. In any case, towels should be frequently changed because they do become heavily laden with bacteria. True, most of these bacteria are relatively harmless, but we never know when there may be some disease producers among them.

High Holy Day Services were conducted by Rabbi Simon and Rev. Kruger. Speakers included Jonah Caplan, of the Rabbi Yitzchak Elchanen Yeshivah, Max Routtenberg, and Louis Drazin. J. S. ORGAANIZER ATTENDS JUBILEE

Andrew E. Myers, now of New York, one of the eleven gentleman present at the original organization meeting of the Montefiore Club October 10, 1880, came from New York to spend this week as a guest at the Montefiore Club, Guy Street, to participate in the 50th. Jubilee Celebration which continued from October 20 to 25.

Survey Situation of Jews in World at American Jewish Congress Meeting

Great Britain will not break her promise and will carry out the terms of her mandate and the Balfour Declaration, under which the British Government has undertaken the obligation to help establish a Jewish home-land in Palestine, Harry Snell, British Labor leader and member of Parliament, said at a banquet of the American Jewish Congress, Oct. 19,, in New York.

Mr. Snell came to this country at the invitation of the congress, whose eighth session opened with 400 delegates present representing Jewish communities and organizations throughout the United States.

Mr. Snell, who became widely known when, as a member of the Shaw Commission appointed by Parliament to investigate the causes of the Arab riots in Palestine last Summer, he took exception to the findings of his colleagues, affirmed his faith in the principles of the Balfour declaration and presented his views of enlightened public opinion in England on the subject of Palestine.

"Great Britain," he said, "is not in Palestine merely as the result of a military conquest of Turkish territory but is there by the orders of the League of Nations and because of the endorsement of her mandate and the Balfour declaration by the leading governments of the world, she has behind her greater authority than any previous trust in the history of mankind."

Referring to the demands of the group of Arab nationalists who resent Great Britain's presence in Palestine and object to the establishment of a Jewish homeland, Mr. Snell, while stating that he did not wish anything he said to be interpreted as hostile to the Arabs, declared that Great Britain will not treat the Balfour declaration as a "scrap of paper." He deplored the action of the British Colonial Office some months ago in suspending Jewish immigration into Palestine, which has been the cause of considerable criticism.

"There are already some 160,000 Jews in Palestine," Mr. Snell said, and the addition of 2,350 for whom certificates have been granted by the High Commissioner would have saved all this criticism without substantially altering the problem to be considered. The government made a general appeal to the Jews to await the report on land and immigration, which Sir John Hope Simpson had been instructed to make, and I cannot help feeling that it might with advantage have followed its own advice."

Dr. Stephen S. Wise of New York, rabbi of the Free, Synagogue, who was prevented by illness from being present, in a message to the congress, read by Rabbi J. X. Cohen of New York, asserted had he been present he would have "said to Mr. Snell that the Jews of the world, about one-fourth of whom reside in America, are prepared to renew their trust in Britain."

"But Britain must set out," Dr. Wise continued, "to merit the eager and generous confidence of the Jewish people, which has been deeply shaken, on grounds that it would not be seemly to discuss in the presence of the chairman of the Parliamentary Labor party of the House of Commons. In the spirit of the Balfour declaration and in the terms of the mandate of the League of Nations, the primary and supreme obligation of Great Britain is to facilitate the establishment of the national Jewish home. This cannot be done negatively. It must be by affirmative action."

Dr. Wise asserted that the American Jewish Congress could not "fail to note with deep concern certain manifestations of unrest in the German Republic."

"Here again," he continued, "our ultimate confidence must be in the wisdom and justice of the great German people. It is solacing to remember that whatever there is of anti-Semitism in Germany today is bound up with the elements of disorder, reaction and destruction throughout Germany. It is not Germany at its best and highest that is indulging in anti-Semitic riots, but only rowdyism, which by its conduct, dishonors Germany as truly as it hurts Germany's loyal Jewish citizens; not the Germany of Rathenau and Stresemann, but the Germany of Hitler."

Among the speakers were Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the congress, who opened the morning session; Louis Lipsky, who presided in the afternoon; Professor Salo Baron of Columbia University, who presented a report on the condition of the Jews in Rumania; Dr. Julius Tenenbaum, who spoke on the Jewish situation in Poland, and Leo M. Glassman, who reported on conditions in Russia.

The barometer of Jewish life had fluctuated with the changing political developments in various countries, Mr. Deutsch said in his presidential message, giving a view of the Jewish situation throughout the world during the past year.

Declaring that the American Jewish Congress had been vigilant during the failure of the régime in Rumania to protect Jewish life and limb, Mr. Deutsch said:

"I think we are justified in saying the negotiations with the representatives of the Roumanian Government carried on jointly, particularly with M. Davila, Rumanian Minister at Washington, have not been altogether fruitless.

"Though we could not prevent the anti-Semitic excesses, I believe we succeeded this time, more than ever before, in impressing on the Rumanian Government the fact that its failure to protect its Jewish subjects is bound to result in injury not only to the Jews but as well to Rumania's good name and prestige abroad."

"A particularly strong challenge to Jewish diplomacy," Mr. Deutsch said, was presented during the year by the religious and cultural repressions in Soviet Russia.

"Of the existence of such repressions in Soviet Russia," he said, "we could have no doubt. The vast amount of material which came to us from authentic sources, the data collected by our committee on Russia and the eyewitness accounts of people who had been in Soviet Russia, were overwhelmingly convincing.

"There has been some measure of relentment in the persecutions of the Jewish religion and Zionism," Mr. Deutsch said after telling of the protest made against repression of Judaism in Soviet Russia, "and we have reason to feel convinced that the protest movement which we organized in this country and which had its reverberations in Europe, did not go unnoticed by the Soviets."

Mr. Deutsch asserted that the "evil of discrimination against Jews in employment and in the colleges and universities is a growing evil, which, unfortunately, can no longer be ignored."

A preliminary survey has been made by two committees during the year, one on discrimination in employment and the other on discrimination in colleges, Mr. Deutsch said, adding that "the congress intends to pursue this task further with the purpose of ascertaining the exact nature and the methods of anti-Jewish discriminations in this country and to assemble a sufficient amount of data to enable us to combat the spreading virus of this evil."

Bernard G. Richards, of New York, presenting the report of the administrative committee, urged the building up of "a reservoir of Jewish strength and convictions, intellectual

VISITOR SEES RAPID SPREAD OF REFORM JUDAISM HERE

Arthur Meyerovitz, of New York, personal representative of David A. Brown, chairman of the Board of Finance of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, spent last week in Canada, visiting Reform Congregations in Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal. He addressed the Board of Trustees of Holy Blossom Congregation at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto and after a short visit to Hamilton, conferred with officers, trustees and Rabbi Harry J. Stern of Temple Emanuel in Montreal. Mr. Meyerovitz said that English-speaking Jewry is being even more intimately cemented of late by the fact that a number of graduates of the Hebrew Union College are serving Jewish congregations in England and in Canada. He said that Canada offers a promising field for the spread of Reform Judaism since the reserve supplies of the Orthodox element are gradually disappearing, both at the source in Russia and other Eastern European countries, and thru restrictive immigration policies. Influenced by the traditional conservatism of the English people, the Jews too have been rather slow in adopting the innovations of modern forms of worship, but that from now on, this process of reforming should develop more rapidly. It would be facilitated by the distinct new trend, which Reform Judaism in general is undergoing, according to Mr. Meyerovitz, towards a more conservative restatement of its religious philosophy as well as in the gradual return to that traditional elements of religious rites and worship. There are 281 organized Reform Congregations thruout the United States and Canada.

Zionists Protest Britain's Future Policy For Palestine Stated in White Paper

Weizmann, Melchett, Warburg, Resign Posts

At London, October 20, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the Zionist world organization and the Jewish Agency for Palestine, confirmed reports that he had resigned the presidency of both those organizations.

It was reported this evening that Dr. Weizmann's action was taken in protest against the British Government's position, as outlined in Sir John Simpson's report submitted today on Palestine land settlements and other problems. Dr. Weizmann, it was said, considers the Government's stand as detrimental to Zionism.

Asserting that the British Government by its attitude on Palestine had broken faith with the Jews who gave their lives and money during the war, Lord Melchett, resigned his chairmanships of two committees of the Jewish Agency Tuesday.

His letter of resignation was sent to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, who resigned the presidency of the Jewish Agency and the International Zionist Organization in protest against the Government's White Paper on Monday, which he interpreted as curtailing the activity of Jewish work in Palestine.

Lord Melchett said that the Government had been aided by Jews during the war, but that the way the Government had "wrecked" the loyal support of the Jews was incredible. "It is an act of almost unparalleled ingratitude and treachery committed by a Government toward a credulous and harassed people," he said.

Lord Melchett (Alfred Mond) succeeded the late Louis Marshall as chairman of the Jewish Agency's Council. As president of the English Zionist Federation and chairman of the Jewish Agency's Council, Lord Melchett has been one of the leading figures in the movement for the upbuilding of Palestine.

The Colonial Office of the British Government on October 20 issued the report of Sir John Hope Simpson concerning Palestine together with a White Paper setting forth the Government's future policy on administration of its mandate in that country.

The statement of policy which is based on the report is the far more important of the two documents, and it is considered so adverse by the Zionists that the first reaction in London the same night was quick protest from both the Jewish agency for Palestine and the Zionist organization, sent to Lord Passfield, Minister for Colonies. Chaim Weizmann, president of both these Jewish organizations, in a personal letter to Lord Passfield also declares his intention to resign both presidencies because in his opinion, the Government's statement of policy makes it impossible for him to further co-operate in solving the Palestine problem.

Dr. Weizmann implies that the Simpson report was bad enough but left the way open for further discussion. In the Government's own statement of policy, however, he finds censure of the Zionist organization's past work and he adds that it, "hardens opinions into decisions."

Lord Passfield, who, of course, has the support of Premier MacDonald and his entire Cabinet in his statement of policy, rests the Government's case entirely on the terms of the mandate under which the British are administering affairs in Palestine and which stipulates that such administration must be equally just, fair and considerate to all the inhabitants of that country regardless of race or religion.

An implication of the statement is that so far the 700,000 Moslem Arabs of Palestine have been the under dogs while the Zionists in their zeal for the welfare of the 160,000 Jewish inhabitants have lost sight of the fact that Britain's responsibility is for both communities.

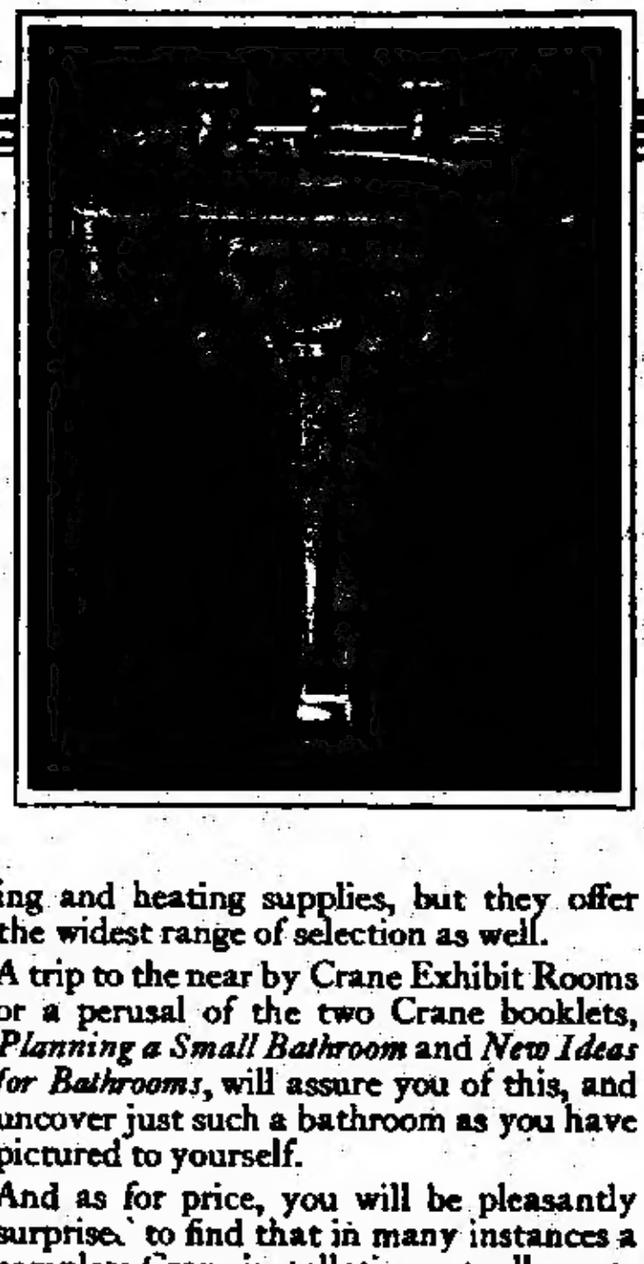
The British Government undoubtedly is trying to play a difficult role impartially. If criticizes the Arabs for their lack of co-operation in schemes to promote self-government institutions in the past and warns them against religious persecution. No doubt in the Arab community of Palestine itself the Government statement will be considered as too pro-Jewish, but in London where there are no Arabs to protest the adverse, criticism is all from the other side.

The Zionist organization receives praise for what it has accomplished, and for its devotion to the work of establishing and developing the Jewish national home in Palestine, but it is emphatically reminded by Lord Passfield that it is not the Government of that country and that Great Britain's political responsibility for Palestine as a mandatory power cannot be delegated to it.

The commission under which Sir John Hope Simpson made the investigation instructed him to report on the three vital questions of land settlement, immigration and development.

He found that arable land already available was limited in extent and that the Arabs were not receiving consideration in allocation and that Jewish immigration should be better regulated and in certain categories checked altogether until more land was developed for settlement and until better provision has been made for landless Arabs.

The Government's statement of policy is based partly on these vital facts, partly on previous statements of the British Government and reports of earlier investigations, and all the time on the terms of the mandate which demand the same treatment for Jewish and Moslem communities.



To a modest bathroom where simplicity is the aim this Crane Idalia lavatory, C 600 S 1, brings convenience at an unusually moderate cost.

To make the house you dream of comfortable

Of course in your own mind, you are planning a new house or remodeling your old one . . . dreaming of the comforts you will have. A bathroom that will offer every convenience, every luxury, and something more. Distinction? Perhaps. An expression of individual graciousness? Certainly.

Naturally the first consideration for this room should be appointments that are perfection itself, mechanically.

Unobtrusively efficient in use . . . easy to keep spotlessly clean . . . costing nothing for repairs . . . and needing no replacements.

Then their design must be in character, contributing to the spirit of the whole house.

In making this dream a reality, Crane Limited will be an invaluable ally. For not only do its materials represent a high achievement in the manufacture of plumbing and heating supplies, but they offer the widest range of selection as well.

A trip to the near by Crane Exhibit Rooms or a perusal of the two Crane booklets, Planning a Small Bathroom and New Ideas for Bathrooms, will assure you of this, and uncover just such a bathroom as you have pictured to yourself.

And as for price, you will be pleasantly surprised to find that in many instances a complete Crane installation actually costs less than one where inferior materials are used.

The British Government's feeling that there is an "under dog" element in the situation is indicated by the following paragraph from the statement of policy:

"The condition of the Arab peasant leaves much to be desired, and a policy of land development is needed if improvement in his condition of life is to be effected. The sole agencies which have pursued a consistent policy have been Jewish colonization societies, private and public. Jewish settlers have had every advantage that capital, science and organization could give them. To these and the energy of the settlers themselves their remarkable progress is due. On the other hand the Arab population, while lacking the advantages enjoyed by Jewish settlers, has by excess of birth over deaths increased rapidly while land available for its sustenance decreased about 250,000 acres. This area has passed into Jewish hands.

The Government statement then takes up accusations that the Jewish settlement has been detrimental to the Arabs, and says that it is not true in all cases, but Lord Passfield makes a distinction in that respect between the Zionist organization and the Palestine Jewish colonization organization. In the case of the latter, he declares their colonies have been beneficial to the Arabs and resulted in excellent relations between the two communities. But, he adds: "Some of the attempts which have been made to prove that the Zionist colonization has not had the effect of causing previous Arab tenants to join the landless class have on examination proved to be unconvincing, if not fallacious."

Concerning present and future distribution of land the Government says, "It can now be definitely stated that at the present time with present methods of Arab cultivation there remains no margin of land available for agricultural settlement and new immigrants with the exception of such undeveloped land as various Jewish organisations hold in reserve. Provision of margin available for further settlement depends upon the progress made in increasing the productivity of land already occupied."

Lord Passfield answers criticism that state land is not made available for Jewish settlement by declaring that unoccupied land in the possession of the Palestine Government is negligible and that even this small area is occupied by Arabs and must not be taken away from them rendering them landless.

With reference to further Jewish immigration which is inseparable from the land question the British Government again cites its Palestine mandate which "directs that the rights and position of other sections of the population shall not be prejudiced by Jewish immigration."

Clearly if immigration of Jews," continues Lord Passfield, "results in the prevention of Arabs obtaining the work necessary for maintenance or if Jewish unemployment unfavorably affects the general labor position, it is the duty of the mandatory power to reduce or, if necessary, suspend such immigration until the unemployed portion obtains work. Under present circumstances His Majesty's Government considers their suspension of immigration under the labor schedule of last May fully justified.

"Any hasty decision in favor of more unrestricted Jewish immigration is to be strongly deprecated not only from the viewpoint of the interests of the Palestine population as a whole, but from the special viewpoint of the Jewish community. So long as widespread suspicion exists as it does amongst the Arab population that their economic depression is due to excessive Jewish immigration and so long as some grounds exist upon which this suspicion may be plausibly presented as well founded, there can be little hope of any improvement in the mutual relations of the two races. It is upon such improvement that the future peace and prosperity of Palestine must largely depend."

The Government policy statement calls attention to the rule of the general federation of Jewish labor which is affiliated with the Zionist movement that Jewish settlers in Palestine must never employ Arab labor. This attitude is criticized by the Government as an infringement of the sole right of the mandatory power to determine matters of policy relating to employment, immigration and land development.

On the subject constitutional development the Government reviews efforts made in the past to give the inhabitants of Palestine some measure of self-government and criticizes the Arabs for failure to co-operate in these schemes and for demanding a form of constitution which is compatible with the mandatory obligations of the British Government. Despite such opposition and past failures, the British Government is now of the opinion the time has come to set up a new form of Palestine Government and is determined to do so. Moreover, it gives warning that "all possible steps will be taken to circumvent any attempt which may be made to prevent the establishment and operation of such Government."

The new governmental machinery as described by Lord Passfield will consist of a High Commissioner with a legislative council of twenty-two members of which ten will be official and twelve unofficial.

Unofficial members to be chosen by primary and secondary elections. If through failure of any part of the community to participate in elections not enough unofficial members are chosen by ballot, they will be appointed by the High Commissioner. Furthermore, the Commissioner will retain power to ensure that the mandatory power can carry out its obligations to the League of Nations, including urgent legislative acts and also power to maintain order. The legislative council will, of course, include both Jews and Moslems.

There is very little said either in the Simpson report or in the Government's statement of policy about the disturbances of last year but the latter document outlines what measures will be taken to deal with similar emergencies in the future. Two battalions of infantry, two squadrons of aircraft and four sections of armored cars are to be maintained in Palestine and Transjordania and methods are under consideration for strengthening the police force.

The MacDonald Government concludes the statement of its future policy with an appeal that both Jews and Arabs co-operate with each other and Britain.

"It is only in a peaceful, prosperous Palestine," says the Government, "that the ideals of a Jewish national home can be realized and it is only by co-operation of Jews and Arabs with the Government that prosperity can be secured. Palestine has reached the critical moment of its development. In the past the Government has left economic and social forces to operate with minimum interference or control, but it has become increasingly clear that such a policy cannot continue.

"It is only the closest co-operation between the Government and leaders of Arab and Jewish communities that can prevent Palestine from drifting into a situation that would imperil, on the one hand, the devoted work of those who have sought to build up a Jewish national home, and, on the other, the interests of a majority of the population who at present possesses few resources of their own with which to sustain the struggle for existence.

"To the Arabs, His Majesty's Government would appeal for recognition of the facts of the situation and for sustained effort and co-operation in obtaining that prosperity for the country as a whole by which all will benefit.

"From the Jewish leaders His Majesty's Government ask recognition of the necessity for making some concessions on their side in regard to the independent and separate ideals which have been developed in some quarters in connection with the Jewish national home and for accepting as an active factor in their policy that the development of the country shall be carried out in such a way that both Arabs and Jews receive adequate consideration."

The report itself describes the terms on which the Foundation funds leases its land to Jewish colonists, terms which preclude the employment of Arabs as "objectionable" and recommends that they should be radically altered.

"It is the duty of the administration under the mandate to insure that the position of the Arabs is not prejudiced by Jewish immigration," the report declares. It is also its duty under the mandate to encourage the close settlement of the Jews of the land, subject always to the former condition. It is only possible to reconcile these apparently conflicting duties by an active policy of agricultural development, having as its object close settlement on the land, and intensive cultivation by both Arabs and Jews. To this end drastic action is necessary."

The methods of co-operation between the Jewish agencies and the authority responsible for the development are discussed, and it is asserted that only by such co-operation can the artificial inflation of land values be prevented. Imprisonment for debt, the report adds, should be abolished.

The report criticizes the existing taxation of agriculture.

"Agricultural taxation is excessive in Palestine at the present time," it says. "The tithe is based on prices of produce, which have fallen by about 50 per cent. since the tithe was commuted. Until arrangements can be made so as to redistribute the burden of taxation that it will fall more fairly the tithe should, if possible, be suspended. If that is not possible it should vary with the average market price of produce."

Registration fees should also be reduced, according to the report, while the educational budget should be increased and there should be close co-operation between the departments of education and agriculture.

After dealing in detail with the principal crops of Palestine and suggesting methods of improvement in their cultivation, the report deals with Palestinian industry. The larger manufacturing industries, it holds, are dependent upon the protection afforded by the import tariff, which in some cases hardly appears to be justified by the results. The wine industry, on the other hand, is overtaxed, according to the report, while the position of the larger industries appears to be stationary, though the chemical industry will become very important" if the Dead Sea concession proves successful."

Small industries, on the other hand, are increasing rapidly, and the report draws attention to the success of the fancy leather industry and of the factory for artificial teeth, which are mainly exported to England. Both these industries were founded by immigrant Jews.

While these small industries seem particularly suited to the country, the report warns that "it would be speculation dangerous to the economic future of the country to start a textile industry in Palestine on a large scale." Arab industries, it adds, exist and deserve encouragement.

The influence of the General Federation of Jewish Labor over immigrants and immigration is criticized and the observations of the Shaw Commission on the subject are upheld. Besides the recommendations under this head and on the control of immigration, the report suggests that the whole question of Arab unemployment should form a subject for study and Government employment exchanges should be created.

Y.M.H.A. Campaigns for Contributing Members

125 volunteer workers attended a special dinner rally Thursday night, October 16, in the auditorium of Y.M.H.A. headquarters on Mount Royal avenue, on the eve of a campaign for 500 contributing members to carry on future activities. Up to Sunday, October 26, members of the Jewish community will be acquainted with the aims of the institution.

There are three forms of contributing membership open to the Jewish community. The classifications are as follows: governor, $100; patron, $50; donor, $25. The need for such a procedure was emphasized by official statistics which proved that of the 3,000 active members only 1,300 paid sufficient fees to cover their own keep.—1,700 boys are kept on the rolls and accorded the privileges of full membership at an average rate of $4 annually to fulfill the wishes of the founder of the present institution, Sir Mortimer Davis, who wanted "to keep boys off the street and in a healthy communal atmosphere."

Sol Kellert presided at the meeting. "There is not a city on the North American continent that has not a list of contributing members to maintain similar institutions," he declared.

As executive director Harvey Golden outlined the reasons for the existence of such an institution.

Mr. Golden stressed the activities of the evening high school, the Sunday school, the modern business course, medical examinations and health talks, the supply to members of means of practical self-development without pauperization. "For all our members meet on common ground, the poor and the rich alike, and our policy develops and increases the community's army of responsible executives in all branches of communal life."

A. H. Jassby, joint chairman with Sol Kellert, reviewed the plans of the committee.

Ald. Louis Rubenstein spoke. Moe Levitt discussed last minute arrangements with the canvassers. Jos. Cohen, K.C., M.L.A., Samuel Hart, Ald. Joseph Schubert, J. B. Becker, L. M. Fingard, H. E. Herschorn, Clarence Michaels, Mark Simon, M. Deskin, Louis Adelstein, Eddie Barkoff and H. L. Sourkes were among the active workers present.

The "Y" Friday-Night Forum Yiddish section first meeting, October 31, Rabbi J. L. Zlotnick, will discuss "The First One Hundred Years of Jewish Literature." The English section will be opened a week later by Louis Fitch, on his recent experiences in Spain. Schedule for the Jewish section: November 14, Modern Theories of Education, by S. Wiseman. November 28, Factors in Canadian Economics, by H. M. Calserman. December 12, The French Under the British Flag, by M. Magid. December 26, The Jewish Theatre in America, by I. Rabinovitch. January 9, Problems of Jewish Migrations, by A. J. Paull. January 23, Jewish Philosophy in the Middle Ages, Rabbi J. L. Zlotnick. February 6, The Canadian Jewish Congress, by H. M. Calserman. February 20, Problems of Jewish Education, by M. Magid. March 6, The Jewish Press and Literature in Canada, by I. Rabinovitch. March 20, Henry David Thoreau, the American Tolstoi, S. Wiseman. "Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor,
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

In its forthcoming campaign for funds the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of Toronto is going to require of the community more money than it did last year because many more people will be in greater need this year. At the same time that this condition prevails it is generally assumed that the usual givers to charity have, on the whole, less ready cash than they had last year. Campaign workers realize that they must brace themselves for effort in securing the year's charity budget.

In every community the usual givers consist of a few men who donate fairly liberally in comparison with their standard of living and many other people who give with automatic regularity but not in proportion to their standard of living by any means. In addition to these two general classes there is one class which gives nothing and one class which needs everything.

The class which gives with the greatest liberality should give. These people have the most material wealth and therefore heaviest responsibility toward the poor should be theirs as a privilege. If these leaders have suffered financial losses from gambling in the stock market they are still far from destitute. They have money and always will have money. Some rich folks pull long faces and appear dejected over a bleak economic outlook as an excuse for not contributing to charity and as a protection against being pressed to contribute what they should, judged by their scale of living. But please do not forget that there is still gold in the hills about Toronto, figuratively speaking, and the entire $175,000 for the Federation campaign could be dug up without inflicting hardship on the givers.

The big class which does not begin to give in proportion to its standard of living and salves its drowsy conscience with niggardly amounts, will not experience dire privation this winter. Elocution and dancing lessons will go on for the children, also lavish treats, and smart clothes. New homes, new cars, new evening dresses, baby grand pianos, radios, midnight suppers, trips and plenty of maid service will not be denied enough households for the fact to be noticeable. People readily expand their scale of living but they seldom reduce it except in ludicrous, petty ways. The first items to appear for reduction are contributions to philanthropic endeavours. The people who are the quickest to renig on their pledges or to with-hold their pledges are those who always give an amount pitifully disproportionate to their obvious expenditures. They "owe it to their wives and children" to let the poor drag along or to let the richer ones bear the major burden of feeding and helping the needy.

No defence in this world can be put up for the many comfortable Jewish families in Toronto who relinquish nothing to charity simply because they belong to nothing and go unasked directly. They mind their own business to a painful degree for they are not their brothers' keepers. But they are willing to let you believe that their private gifts to charity are manifold and would be impressive were it not bad taste to divulge them! They live off the fat of the land or a fair amount of it and may even enjoy the respect of fine people under false pretences. These non-givers skulk behind a myth and shirk their duties with a smugness that denotes a bankruptcy in social-mindedness. There should be some way to redeem their small souls to decency and good citizenship. There should be a scheme for lifting them up from a low level to a realization of their proper share in the public obligation to the poor. How can the Federation campaign reach this class? How?

Then there is the class which needs everything: food, shelter, loans, spiritual comfort, reconstruction. Run your finger down the list of things necessary to life. There are poverty-stricken people at your doorstep who need them all. These are the real experts in human suffering of every description. In the midst of illness, maladjustment, and squalor they stand in despair, bewildered as to which way to turn. Their existence is not from year to year but from meal to meal. As you read this line hundreds of dreary Jews a few blocks from your home are relying on their invisible friends, the givers to charity, for aid of various kinds.

It takes pluck to launch a charity campaign just now and those who are managing the appeal in Toronto need support in order to maintain the whole-hearted spirit with which they are going about their job. They are not a gang of high-binders bent on extorting money for themselves. They are the spokesmen for the men and women who can't speak to you for themselves. They are working in a charity campaign because they feel concern for the unfortunate and because they are public-spirited and possess a community conscience. They want you to lend a hand to the human beings who ask nothing of life except what it takes to keep going and a little extra pause in which to stumble to their feet again.

When a campaign worker comes to you for your subscription, welcome him with respect and friendliness. It takes a certain courage to approach you. Here is a man who does a good deed and let's you share it. Don't dampen his ardor by telling him your own hard luck story. He comes from Federation, the storehouse of Jewish hard luck in your city. Don't be surly, don't degrade him and you and the word charity by trying to wriggle out of what you yourself know to be your full share of assistance. Be gracious. This man is a member of the community family which contributes much toward making your life as pleasant as it is. You have your struggles and your troubles but at least you are the one being called on for help. You have escaped the bitter accidents of life which make a man an object of charity. Your way of giving thanks should express itself in hard cash. Don't economize on bread for the poor. Don't retrench on Federation needs. Let your conscience guide your giving!

American Jewish Congress Committee Reports on Discrimination in Employment

A few months ago Bernard S. Deutsch, President of the American Jewish Congress, appointed a committee to study the discrimination against Jewish persons applying for employment. In the limited time available, this committee, of which David L. Podell is Chairman and Rabbi J. X. Cohen, Secretary, has made a preliminary survey and wishes to report to the Congress on the results of its reconnaissance. At the beginning of its work, the committee obtained the cooperation of Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Rabbi of the Free Synagogue and President of the Jewish Institute of Religion, who had given considerable attention to the entire problem for some years. Through Dr. Wise, the committee received the cooperation of Rabbi J. X. Cohen, associated with Dr. Wise in the ministry of the Free Synagogue, who had been making an intensive personal investigation of the matter prior to the creation of the committee.

The difficulties of the investigation have been very great, and the resources of time and funds available to the committee exceedingly limited. Nevertheless, they have been able to establish indubitably that a considerable degree of discrimination exists in the employment market of New York City, intensified by the present general depression. Unless definite steps are taken by a representative Jewish body, such as the Congress, it will become increasingly difficult for Jewish persons to find employment.

The investigation disclosed that part of the discrimination is due to a prejudiced attitude held by the managers and subordinates of commercial employment agencies. The legal aspects of how this phase can be handled are now being carefully studied. It is quite definite that licensed employment agencies which discriminate against applicants because of race or creed can be disciplined by the municipal licensing authorities.

Because discrimination against applicants is exercised in subtle ways the difficulties of the investigation have been multiplied. Nevertheless the committee has come to the definite conclusion that there are a number of large organizations whose employment policy is discriminatory but it holds the opinion that the heads of such corporations are misinformed concerning the prejudiced position taken by their subordinates in their personnel departments. The committee therefore plans, through well qualified representatives, to interview the directing heads of such corporations and to engage their sympathetic support in eliminating the bias and prejudice that exists.

The committee plans to carry its investigations quietly and intensively into the various affected fields of commerce, industry and finance. The amount of work that the committee can accomplish will be limited by the measure of support which the Congress votes for the committee's purposes.

Surveying the whole distressing situation, the committee feels that there are three avenues of activity which the Congress should direct it to pursue.

First,—the committee should negotiate with organizations and corporations that practice discrimination, using all means that are both effective and reasonable to induce the re-

Einstein Says Benefactions By Jews Benefit The Donors

When the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies in New York opened its campaign this week for over two millions of dollars, among the addresses shown on the screen was the following by Dr. Albert Einstein, of Berlin:

"Dear friends in America: Most people have preserved themselves by establishing sites and by conquering territory and defending them, arms in hand. Even the Jewish people in the Bible era established their existence on this basis. They would long ago have been destroyed like all the other nations if they had not discovered and maintained a more solid basis for their existence.

"This new basis the moral law and the cherishing of the tradition based on this law. It was only owing to this tradition that the Jewish people became capable and worthy of surviving the serious storms of the centuries, in which struggle their peculiar genius and vitality grew more and more consolidated.

"In the moral tradition of the Jewish people, the spirit of self-sacrifice and mutual aid occupy the first place. Had it not been for this tradition there would be no Jews in existence now. So long as this tradition continues to be transmitted solicitously from generation to generation, the hatred opposing us cannot do us any harm. The fairest quality of Jewish charity is the fact that it does not stop at the bounds of our own people, but in many cases redounds to the advantage of the poor and oppressed of other races.

"Benefactions are not regarded by good Jews as a sacrifice on the part of the giver, but as a benefit to the donor himself. The recognition that possessions are not a privilege but a trust must always remain alive among us; among non-Jews, too, this conception is far more alive in the United States than in Europe.

"So long as we ourselves may cherish the happy feeling that our tradition gives animation to lofty values, we Jews all over the world will not cease to feel our solidarity and we shall continue to exist as a community spread all over the world. In this sense benefactions are a blessing to the giver."

Would You Buy the House You are Trying to Sell?

May be you would because its location is fine and its plan just right. But wouldn't you wish it had just a few more modern improvements. "Red Seal" electric wiring, for instance?

Perhaps that is the very thing that is keeping your house from selling . . . . lack of sufficient wiring for an electric range and electric ironer or electric water heater . . . . . lack of "Convenience outlets" in the rooms for the ready attachment of floor lamps, and iron, vacuum cleaner, toaster, and such other electrical appliances that are found in most homes.

For full information about "Red Seal" wiring write or telephone, Electric Service League, 302 Excelsior Life Bldg., (Elgin 4937).

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi HARRY J. STERN, of Montreal,
Associate Contributing Editor

FIFTY YEARS

The Montefiore Club observes its fiftieth birthday this week. This happy event is of import to the entire Jewish community of Montreal. For a half century this club has sponsored everything that is elevating and useful and it especially has excelled in most recent years in the advancement of Jewish Philanthropy.

To the officers and members of the Montefiore I extend my heartiest good wishes.

"WE ARE BOUND TOGETHER"

The letter below is so touching and illustrative of our common brotherhood that I offer it to my readers. It was written by the beloved rector of the St. James the Apostle Chuch (Montreal) in reply to an expression of sympathy of mine in his hour of great sorrow when death untimely took his only child and daughter who resided in London, England.

"My dear Rabbi—

How sweet it was of you to send your cable of sympathy! It touched and cheered us. Death is no respector of creeds or race. We are bound together in the sorrows and joys of life. Our little girl was so radiant and happy that death cannot take her away. She is ours forever in all that is best and truest and we march on holding fast our treasure.

But it is good to have understanding friends at such a time and we therefore prize your sympathy.

With sincere regards,
Faithfully yours,
Allan P. Shatford."

THE OLD GUARD

I just returned from the first "Jubilee" luncheon given in the Montefiore Club in honor of those members who joined the organization during its first decade. I saw fifteen elders surround the festive board. These men in reality constitute the "old guard" of Jewish Montreal. They lived in the city when the Jewish population was only a mere handful. They have seen Montreal Jewry grow. They, for the most part, have moulded the communal life of our metropolis. And as I studied these venerable gentlemen—I saw written in their faces a sense of spritual satisfaction. They have not only lived—they have lived and served the Jewish community. We congratulate the "old guard"—they have given dignity to Jewish life in Canada. May God spare them among us for many many years.

"THEY NEED YOU NOW AS NEVER BEFORE"

The large centers of Jewish life are about to commence their annual Federation campaigns. The above slogan sums up the call that comes to the fortunate these days in behalf of the unfortunate. For never before were the poor and needy so helpless as in these days of unemployment and economic depression. The real test of people's characters, their social responsibility comes when giving is going to be a little hard.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming, and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

For free copies write: G. A. ELLIOTT, Director of Colonization, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario. "Please mention this paper."

let each one appear before the tribunal of his own inner self and meet this test with full and unwavering sincerity. If our losses upon the stock exchange are going to lessen our contributions to the poor—although we deny ourselves not a single caprice or foible—then a terrible indictment must be levelled against us and we cannot escape the damning charge that we have gambled, not with funds which were our own, but with the food and shelter and clothing, the health,—yea, even the lives of the poor, and for every child that will die of malnutrition, for every invalid that will be snuffed out for lack of medical care, for every home saddened by Death's angel snatching a precious life from its chill and darkened midst, for every starving and shattered body the ramifications of which will be passed down from generation to generation unto the very end of time—we, and we alone, will be responsible! We have taken food from the hungry, clothing from the naked, shelter from the homeless, coal from the shivering, medicine from the dying, and we have squandered it upon the exchange. This we have done, if, while denying ourselves not a single extravagant and fantastic wish, we dare to reduce our subscriptions to the poor. Yes, indeed, we shall learn this year who is truly noble and who is really philanthropic. There may be a transvaluation of values as we discover just who is heroic, religious, charitable enough actually to share, to divide, to sacrifice and to serve his fellow creatures, whatever the risk or cost.

Financial depression is upon us, but the Federation Drive must go on. The poor are calling to us more piteously than they ever have before. Through no fault of theirs, unemployment has grown apace, petty savings have been consumed, grim poverty stalks across the thresholds of their homes. The need is greater than ever before. Who, in the presence of his innermost soul, before the majesty of his conscience, and in the face of these trembling and petitioning hands raised in beseeching prayer, who dares deny to the needy his fullest due?

Another factor which ought to help the current session achieve a notable record is the fortunate selection of a headliner for this year. It is a tradition with the Congress to enlist whenever possible the aid of some star guest-performer. On one occasion Israel Zangwill was imported as an added drawing card. He managed to explode a few bombs of original ideas which probably scared some people away. On the whole, however, the detonations attracted attention to the scene. On another occasion Deputy Gruenbaum, the stormy leader of Polish Jewry, and head of the Radical Zionist faction, was brought here to warm up the cooled-off Congress hash. His oratory and passionate idealism raised the temperature of the sessions. This time the Congress has no less popular a personage than Harry Snell, the author of the honest minority report of the Shaw Palestine Commission. As Labor member of the Commission he had the courage to view the Palestine situation from the angle of true Labor principles. The adoption by his government of the attitude of the majority report in defiance of its professed policies only tends to accentuate the nobility and idealism of this man. To the Jewish world Harry Snell stands forth as the personification of the conscience of the British people. In presenting him to the Jewish public the Congress will afford us a view of one of the few figures who have not forfeited the confidence of the Jewish people.

The American Jewish Congress, for the first time since its inception some twelve years ago is now in a fair way to achieve the prestige and importance to which its ideology entitles it. Born amid the thunder and lightning of the late-war conditions, the Jewish world swore to it unhesitating fidelity. The Congress idea became the new faith of the impressionable public. Its two central tenets of democracy and unity stirred the imagination of Jewry everywhere. Like all faiths, however, it soon degenerated into a bit of dogma. Were it not for the fanatical tenacity of its two priests, Stephen S. Wise and Bernard G. Richards, who nursed it in its direst distress, it would long have departed this earth. Dr. Wise looked after its spiritual needs. Mr. Richards tended to its shrivelled little body. At times, when its plight was acutest the Zionist organization took pity on it and gave it shelter. In return it would do odd chores for the Zionist organization, and thus earn its salt.

Conditions have recently changed bearing very materially on the status of the Congress. In a larger way, the temper and frame of mind of the Jewish public are beginning to approximate the temper and frame of mind which obtained at the time of the birth of the Congress idea. As then, the situation of the Jewish people is desperate. In one land after another the distress is becoming unbearable. The sources of relief in America are drying up owing to the economic depression. The existing agencies of leadership have proved inadequate. The feeling is rife that something heroic must be done to save the situation. And there naturally comes to mind the thought of a congress. Just what a congress can do is not clear. But there is the hope born of desperation. Perhaps the congress will prove the needed panacea. If a large, all-embracing Jewish body were created it might in some miraculous fashion be able to draw into its system the undirected currents of energy which are now going to waste, and with its concentrated power succeed in giving the despondent Jewish people the protection which it needs. In such an atmosphere of despair and mystic longings the idea of a Jewish congress finds suitable conditions for growth. Moreover there are a number of adventitious circumstances in American Jewish life which are helpful to the cause of a revitalized congress. Since the death of Louis Marshall the American Jewish Committee has lost a great deal of its prestige. With the decline of the influence of its chief rival, the American Jewish congress is now able to appropriate the former's vacated ground. Then, too, owing to the exigencies of the functioning of the Jewish Agency, the Zionist organization has lost its preeminence in national and cultural affairs. The congress stands out as the body that can best assume the role of plenary leadership in American Jewish life.

It is possible that the favorable omens of the pending ascendency of the Congress have not yet become discernible to the leaders. In that case it will probably struggle along another period in its present reduced state. But the day is not far off when the waif will become a prince once again. Dr. Stephen Wise may become the active president once more, and Mr. Bernard G. Richards will wear a silk hat on week days as will be befitting his dignity as chief ministrant to the Congress. A.B.B.

Committee on Discrimination

moval of the barriers against Jewish applicants for employment.

Second,—the committee advocates the creation of a Bureau of Research within the Congress to give its full time to the investigation. This Bureau will be able to supply the committee with the necessary facts and such indubitable evidence concerning discrimination wherewith negotiations with discriminating organizations can be successfully conducted.

Third,—the committee feels that either an employment agency should be created or an existing one subsidized, which employment agency shall, without discrimination, favor Jewish applicants. A new agency would be self-supporting after the development stages have been passed. Such an employment agency, seeking to serve prospective employers as the agency recognized by the American Jewish Congress, would speak with a voice that would help to obtain many jobs for Jewish men and women in places where the doors are now closed.

Neither time, nor good tactics, permit the presentation of the numerous facts unearthed by the committee. These facts cry to Heaven of a great injustice being done against the Jewish boys and girls, and the Jewish men and women, of the great metropolitan center of New York and of other large Jewish centers as well. The reaction of the members of the Congress who will sense the economic distress and the moral disaster following in the wake of this glaring injustice can only be: We must bring this to an end. We must flash the light of truth upon this hideous un-American creature of darkness that is literally blasting the hopes and crushing the lives of thousands of our Jewish people.

The situation is by no means hopeless. In fact, the negotiations already conducted by the committee with certain employers have been so helpful in minimizing discrimination and in enlarging opportunities for employment of Jews that the prospect faced by the committee is encouraging. Progress, however, can only be made by obtaining incontrovertible facts and by qualified representatives of the American Jewish Congress conducting negotiations on the basis of these facts.

The committee should be immediately authorized to speak in the name of the American Jewish Congress and all that the Congress represents, to engage in conference with Christian liberals and with industrial leaders to ameliorate the situation. It should furthermore be granted an adequate subvention to establish a Research Bureau and take other practical steps that will remove the unjust disabilities suffered by our people.

FORMER MRS. DE SOLA DIES IN LONDON

Bram de Sola, of New York, and Miss Louise de Sola of London. ZIONISTS PROTEST

"If there are Arab workmen unemployed it is not right that Jewish workmen from foreign countries should be imported to fill the existing vacant posts," the report asserts.

"Both the expenditure necessary for the purchase of land in connection with development and the expenditure by the Commission itself are largely in the nature of an outlay which will in time be repaid. This outlay is in fact reproductive expenditure. Of the advances for development 58 to 90 per cent. should prove recoverable."

Sir John Hope Simpson concludes his report as follows:

"I desire to record my opinion that the observance of the articles of the mandate, and especially Article VI of the mandate presents extraordinary difficulty. The sole way in which the mandate can be carried out is by intensive development of rural Palestine. It will not be sufficient to develop a small portion. The unique condition for success is the development of the whole, which, as has been said before, is a task requiring not only years of work but also material expenditure.

"There exists no easy method of carrying out the provisions of the mandate. Development is the only way. Without development there is no room for a single additional settler if the standard of life of the Fellahee is to remain at its present level. With development that standard could be raised so that it would permit reasonable conditions of livelihood to the backyard class of the community and a margin of land could at the same time be provided for additional colonization.

"It is my personal belief, founded on the inquiries which I have made and on my inspections, that with thorough development of the country there will be room not only for all the present agricultural population on a higher standard of life than it at present enjoys, but for not less than 20,000 families of settlers from the outside.

"Any scheme for development presents serious difficulties. Unless such a scheme is accepted by both Jew and Arab it may very well fail. Of both it will require support if it is to have the desired result: namely, the advancement of a neglected but historic country in the path of modern efficiency by the joint endeavor of the two great sections of its population with the assistance of the mandatory power."

Later he was to become known as leader of the Orthodox majority of the community, and one of the most uncompromising opponents of the so-called Reform movement in North America. It was largely through his unceasing agitation, that the first conference of representatives of Orthodox Judaism ever held on this continent was convened in New York, 1898. Dr. de Sola married Katherine (Katie) Samuel in 1887. She was vice-president and treasurer of the local branch of the National Council of Women of Canada, and president of the local section of the Council of Jewish Women.
